Solar Equipment Now Eligible

For years, the State of California has provided a tax exemption for farmers who generate their own electricity with equipment and machinery used primarily in producing and harvesting agricultural products. The Board of Equalization has recently clarified that solar energy systems may qualify for this exemption even if the electricity generated first goes to the electrical grid before being used in qualified agricultural activities. Prior to this clarification, farmers may have been mistakenly advised that they could receive the exemption for purchases of diesel generators, but not for solar energy systems that connected directly to the grid.

Now, farmers who purchase a solar electricity generating system are being clearly advised that they can benefit from this important tax exemption for any solar energy system that is specifically designed to provide power to qualified farm equipment and machinery.
